The college year 1961-62 has been one of major significance in the building of a great Orange County State College.

The number of students increased from 1069 in the fall of 1960 to 1621 in the fall of 1961, and again to 1950 in the spring semester of 1961-62. Fifty-five faculty and administrative staff members were added, and five new majors were approved, to join the fifteen baccalaureate programs already authorized for the college.

At the opening of the year, the long-awaited permanent building program got under way. What is reputed to be the largest science classroom building in the nation--seven acres of floor space--is now rising toward its ultimate height of six stories. Plans have been approved for a magnificent music-speech-drama building and gymnasium, and for extensive outdoor physical education facilities. Specifications for a library, cafeteria, and two residence halls to house four hundred students have been prepared. The college master plan and site development have moved ahead.

This year for the first time, Orange County State College and its sister institutions have been governed by a separate board, the California State College Trustees, established by the legislature and the voters of California.

Student participation in the life of the college continued to develop and diversify. In speech, debate, and basketball the college began to gain recognition for the accomplishments of its students. Student organizations multiplied, prospered, and served the college as well as a wide variety of individual interests. Student government assumed broader responsibilities consistent with a growing institution.

College Advisory Board

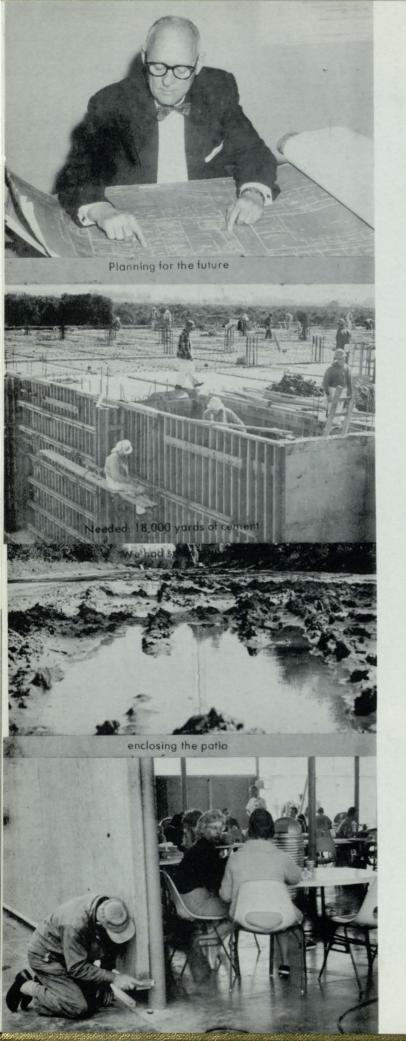

President's Cabinet

In compliance with recommendations in the Master Plan for Higher Education in California, a separate governing board for the California State Colleges was established on July 1, 1961. This board, the Trustees of the California State Colleges, is now completing its first year of operation. The central administrative authority is under the direction of the Chancellor, appointed by the Trustees.

In order that each state college may have close liaison with the area served by the college, the Education Code of the State of California provides for a local advisory board. The College Advisory Board of Orange County State College has ten members representing Santa Ana, Anaheim, Fullerton, Placentia, Garden Grove, Laguna Beach and Whittier. Leo C. Marshburn is the chairman.

Dr. William B. Langsdorf, the President of the College, is chairman of the President's Cabinet, which is composed of other members of the administrative staff of the College. In addition, the chairman of the Faculty Council, this year Dr. Raymond Adams, serves on the cabinet, and Raynolds Johnson, assistant to the President, serves as ex-officion member. The President's Cabinet is an official advisory group to the president.

Building for the Future

While progress during the 1961-62 school year took place in classes, in student government and in a variety of projects on and off campus, the most evident example of progress at Orange County State College for this school year was in the construction of a mammoth six-story Science Building at the south end of the campus.

Building for the future took place in student activities, in faculty council deliberations and in administrative policies, but the long range housing planning was especially important, if the college expects to be ready for the anticipated burgeoning student population.

Responsible for most of the planning of buildings and installations on campus is the executive Dean, Stuart F. McComb, who, together with his assistant, Building Coordinator Milton Blanchard, work many years ahead to assure the college of needed permanent facilities.

A giant crane hovered over the Science Building. The college's first permanent structure, which will offer classroom space for all division classes, is expected to be ready for occupancy in September of 1963. Actual construction costs are approximately $5,727,000 with the equipment and classroom facilities expected to push the total cost figure to around 11 million dollars.

The six-story building will house classrooms, the library, administrative offices, health center, snack bar, student offices and Working plans for the second major building, the Music-Speech-Fine Arts Building, are nearing completion with the contract expected to be awarded this fall. Construction of this building is expected to be completed by September, 1964. The building will consist of a 500-seat little theatre, a 200-seat recital hall, and radio and TV studios for both open and closed circuit TV.

Progress was also noted this year in the completion of the foreign language laboratory and the photography laboratory in the Journalism Department. The language lab was equipped with stereo tape recorders in booths where students can listen, respond, record and play back without erasing the master tape. The lab, used by foreign language students for audio-lingual practice to reinforce classroom work, was completed under the direction of Dr. Gustave Mathieu.

A Humanities Lecture Series was started with Richard Armour and Elizabeth Drew presenting outstanding lectures to students and faculty. The Science Division and the Social Science Division also brought important authorities to campus in a series of thought provoking meetings. Many other successful projects were launched in other divisions of the college.

Both students and faculty made an impact on Orange County with well received presentations to schools, clubs and organizations and in taking an active part in community activities. A college Speaker's Bureau was also established.

While a wet campus was in evidence during much of the winter season, the rains did neither slow the construction activities nor dampen the enthusiasm of the students.

Services Aid Students

Services to students are administered by the Student Personnel Division headed by Ernest A. Becker, Dean of Students. Chief of these services are the Counseling Center, Placement Office and Health Office. In addition, the expanding Library is a service administered by the Dean of Instruction and the food services and bookstore are services operated by the Orange County State College Foundation.

The Counseling Center offers assistance on problems ranging from a course change to information on careers. A large number of extensive tests are administered here. Dean Lester Beals directs this office.

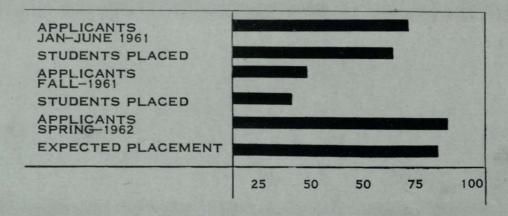

The Placement Office has been in operation 15 months and has placed students in a number of part-time and permanent jobs although the principal assistance to date has been in the area of teacher placement. Director Max Burk reports that approximately 90 teachers will be placed in elementary and secondary jobs this spring. This represents almost 100% of the applicants.

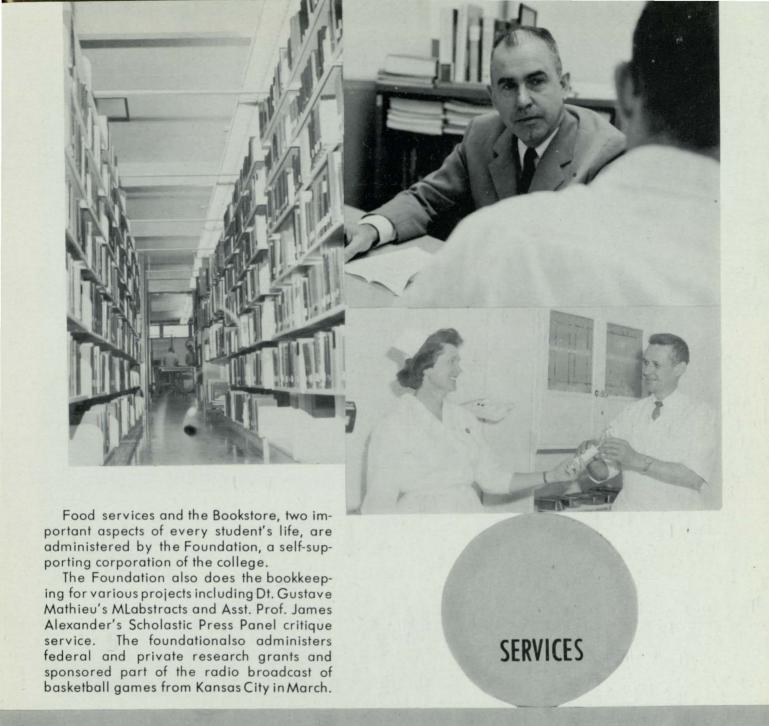

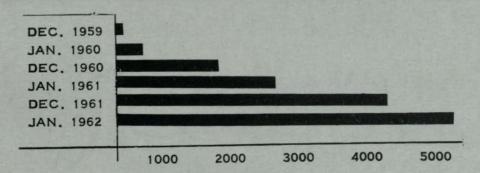

Catering to the intellectual needs of the students, the Library, under the direction of Librarian Ernest Toy, is continually adding to a collection estimated at 29,850 books at the end of the first semester of this school year.

The Library maintains a periodical and reference section, microfilm files of back issues, and a microfilm reader and reader printer. The Library is capably staffed with trained professional personnel.

The Health Center, located in Building 1400, is concerned with the students' physical well being. Both a registered nurse, Mrs. Louisa Couper, and a physician, Dr. Harold L. Graber, maintain regular office hours.

Operating at high speed was the machinery of student government, the student council.

The wheels were set in motion early last fall with the approval of the revised A.S. Constitution in a general election, automatically creating four new voting seats on council: two junior class representatives, a senior class representative and a representative of the graduate class.

Priscilla Chaney, Barbara Rees and Jack Clements served as junior representatives, Jackie Lampher and Cameron Stewartwere elected to senior and graduate representatives seats.

A major change-over in power came when Joe Clayes, ASB president, resigned his post because of ill health. Doug Dyer picked up the president's gavel vacating his position as ASB vice-president, later filled by Clyde Morris.

In addition four new commissioner posts were created bringing the total to nine.

Drama Hits Top

Drama at Orance County State College achieved remarkable heights this year with a variety of excellent presentations featured by the comedy, "The Man Who Came To Dinner" offered in January.

The year started with the Experimental Theatre's presentation of five one act plays in November. At the time, Dr. James Young, associate professor of drama and director, said that while Room 701, the current OCSC theatre, did have some disadvantages with the small stage limiting action, there were a few advantages, too. For one, the audience felt more involved in the action of the play.

"I was superb. . .

members who attended one of the three evening performances. As Dr. Young pointed out, the three act Kaufman-Hart comedy provided some excellent character parts for local thespians.

An excellent performance in the title role was given by Stewart Roger's. Many other members of the cast turned in outstanding performances.

Five one-act plays were presented during the spring semester. They included "If Men Played Cards As Women Do" with a cast of Edgar Clark, Ron Bell, Jack Campbell and Jim Hatchett; "The Valiant" featuring Ken Rich and Pierre de Grignon; "The Dear Departed" with Ken Coltrin; "An Echo of Wings" with Neale Stoner and "A Sunny Morning" featuring Billie Bradbury and John McLaughlin.

Forensic Year Successful

Orange County State College can indeed be proud of its Forensic Sqad. Already the squad has doubled in size, doubled tournament participation, and more than tripled the number of awards won. Under the direction of Coach Lee Granell, the squad noted increases in size and success during a record year.

Starting the season with debaters Bradbury and McLaughlin participating in the demonstration debate at the clinic held at El Camino College, the squad went on to chalk up many awards. A partiallist of the victories includes 11 trophies, 16 Superior Awards, and 16 Excellent Awards.

One of the big achievements of the year was the winning of the Sweepstakes Trophy at the Spring Individual's Events Championship Tournament at Long Beach State Col-

Music Activities Grow

The Associated Students joined with the OCSC Music Advisory Committee and other community sponsors in presenting a notable "first" to highlight the 1961-62 music season. The college Music Department produced its first opera, "A Gift of Song" which featured the choir and professional leads in a representation of a story of "Silent Night" The program was viewed by more than 3000 children of the public schools of Orange County.

Another highlight for music activities sponsored by the Associated Students was the presentation in March by the College-Community Chamber Symphony under the baton of Dr. Justin Gray, Associate Professor of Music. The concert presented in the Fullerton High School auditorium featured soloists, Archie Wade, flutist, and Donal belay above

The OCSC Symphoic Choir of 85 voices under the direction of David Thorsen, Associate Professor of Music, gave three major performances that were also well received.

A faculty recital was presented in November featuring the clarinetartistry of Dr. Gray and Donald Michalsky and in January students and faculty had the opportunity to attend a noon concert featuring Concert Pianist Jack Crosson.

District NAIA Crown Goes To Titans

Orange County State College gained national recognition this year through the efforts of a basketball team that ended the season ranked as one of the best in the country.

The basketball Titans, in only their second year, produced record after record in defeating teams from four-year colleges and universities throughout California and other states.

A number of season highlights by the Orange State squad were noted by Athletic News Bureau Director Don Andersen in his season summary:

The Titans finished the year with a 24-6 mark, including 14 wins in 15 tournament appearances.

Coach Alex Omalev won his 300th game in Kansas City, then added one for good measure before the Titans were turned back by Westminster (Pa.) the number one small college team in the nation.

Edgar Clark practically rewrote the record books as he established mark after mark that will have subsequent Titans shooting at for seasons to come. Edgar scored 646 points, almost 200 more than Jon Brettman did last season when he led Orange State scoring.

Clark averaged 21.5 points per game and was named to the 'All-Tournament team in every tourney in which Orange State participated.

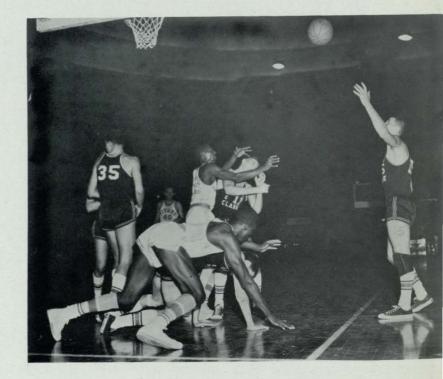

The Titans won tournament crowns at the Redlands Invitational, the Kris Kringle Klassic, the Las Vegas Classic, the Valley Christian Invitational, the District Three (NAIA) Playoffs, and won two games in three starts in the NAIA national tournament in Kansas City.

As a team the Titans scored 2361 points, an average of 78.7 per game while holding opponents to 1999, or 66.9 per game.

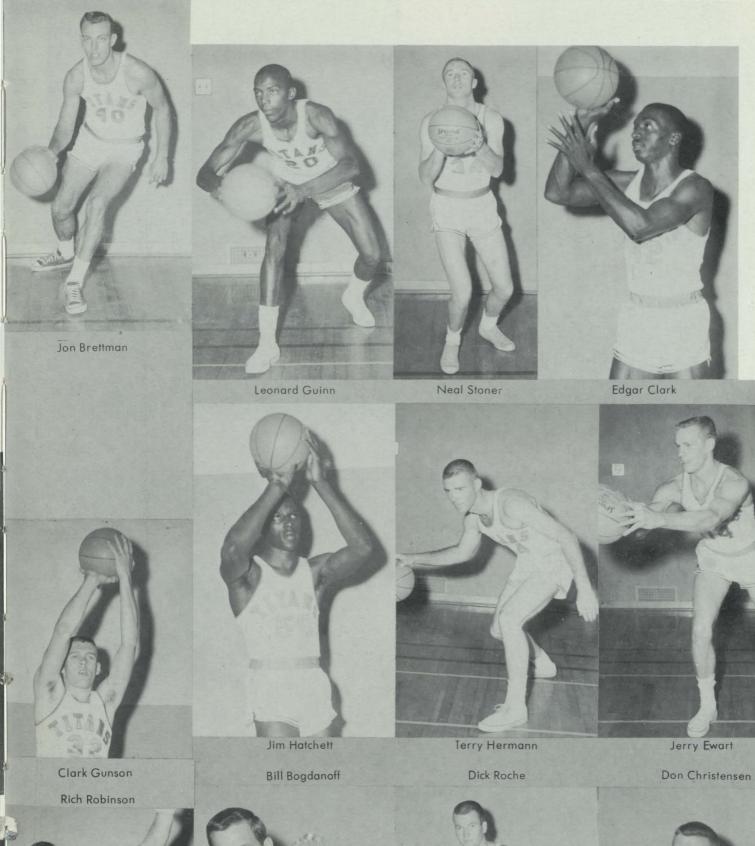

The Titans scored wins over such small college powers as Chapman of Orange; Cal Poly of Pomona; Sacramento State, the runner up team in the NCAA national tournament; Stetson University of DeLand, Fla; and Lewis and Clark College of Portland, Ore.

Four men finished the season averaging in double figures. Clark was 21.5. Leonard Guinn averaged 16.7 per game while Brettman was 14.3 and Terry Hermann 11.5

Planning - Top Priority

A number of significant accomplishments should be noted in all divisions of Orange County State College this year. In addition to many hours spent on planning the curriculum for the expanding college, faculty members wrote articles and books, gave talks, participated in conferences and engaged in research activities. The preparation of plans for a number of bachelor degree majors for college and state approval also took a large portion of time for many faculty members.

The college teaching faculty has grown along with the student body. The faculty numbered six in 1959, the college's first year of operation; in September, 1960, there were 48 faculty members and the 1961-62 school year this total advanced to 74.

Only a few of the many significant activities in each of the six instructional divisions and the Student Personnel Division may be mentioned in the limited space available in this section of the 1962 Titan.

Dr. Frank Roberts

Work on Masters Program

The Chief aim of the Division of Business Administration and Economics is to afford a basic education for managerial and professional positions in business, government and education. Tremendous steps have been taken this past year to facilitate this goal.

Included in the accomplishments are the development of a proposed Masters Program and the introduction of a Certified Public Accountant Review Course for students planning to go into this field and for those already in the field who are working for a California Certificate.

Also initiated was the Society for the Advancement of Management by students enrolled in the division, with Dr. Theodore Smith, division chairman. serving as advisor.

Expansion Noted

Development and expansion are the key words in regard to the activities in the Education and Psychology Division this year.

Projects here include the development of a preparatory program for those interested in school administration and counseling and aid in developing the Orange State Educational Association.

The addition of many new courses aided the division in the refined program for Elementary and Secondary Credential candidates. Of special interest to these candidates is the expansion of the laboratory experiences in student teaching.

Change In Name

The Speech and Fine Arts Division has become the Division of Fine and Applied Arts, but, in addition to the name change, the division completed a number of more noteworthy achievements.

Education

Of special interest in this division was the increase noted in the various departments. The Music Department with its two major performance groups has established the first student chapter of the Music Educator's National Conference with Dr. Justin Gray as the adviser.

The Art Department has completed many interesting and worthwhile projects during the year, and the expansion of the Speech and Hearing Clinic has enabled its students to have additional clinical practice. Also, the expanded forensic program should be noted. All of these accomplishments have made it a busy year for the Speech and fine Arts faculty.

Present Lectures

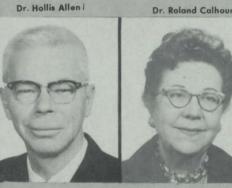

Progress reports from the Humanities division should include the series of lectures which brough Richard Armour and Elizabeth Drew to campus.

Additional completed projects include the addition of Graduate Seminars in Joyce and Melville, a Major in Comprehensive Literature, and a new inter-disciplinary co-

Seminar is Added

Expansion of the Research House and new laboratories in Physics and Chemistry highlight the accomplishments in the Science and Mathematics Division this year. Also added was a Science and Mathematics Seminar for the public.

On campus lecture series featured three outstanding scientists.

In addition, the division sponsored a series of off campus lectures on the nature and purpose of new curriculum movements in secondary school science and mathematics. This series featured outstanding speeches from the directors and staffs of leading curriculum studies presenting their respective programs.

Add New Majors

Increased enrollment the Social Science division has made it one of the largest divisions. The growth includes an increase in the number of faculty members and in the number of courses. Included also, is the addition of majors in Geography and History and three graduate seminars.

Members of the staff have made other special contributions. In addition to lectures to many community groups, there have been projects. Dr. Giles Brown division chairman, has a weekly radio program discussing current affairs. Dr. Beckhas had his book, History of New Mexico, published and Professors Mason, Earick, and Brown

Personnel Staff Busy

The Student Personnel Division of the college is concerned with those many aspects of college life outside the scope of formal classroom instruction. The staff, through its various offices, has helped prospective students to learn about the college and its offerings, to gain admission, be advised academically, and to solve other related problems of college life.

Included in the responsibilities of the division are such areas as job placement, personal counseling, scholarships and loans, the testing program, intercollegiate athletics, intramural sports, student government and activities, student publications, student conduct and discipline, as well as admissions and records.

Faculty members also spend a large amount of time working on Faculty Council activities and committees. Committees have formulated policies this year which are basic to the continued development of the college. Much has been accomplished in setting up the machinery for an orderly development of college policies.

Giving able direction to the faculty activities has been Dr. Raymond Adams, chairman.

Elected to direct activities this year were 25 faculty members who comprise the Faculty Council. Other officers were Dr. William Alamshah, vice-chairman, Dr. Charles Povlovich, secretary, and Dr. David Li, treasurer.

When the Senior Class of 1962 takes part in the third graduating exercises since the college opened, graduates can lookback to a number of accomplishments.

The class ratified the Senior Class Constitution during this school year. Naming of a class gift committee and selection of a class ring also took place during the year.

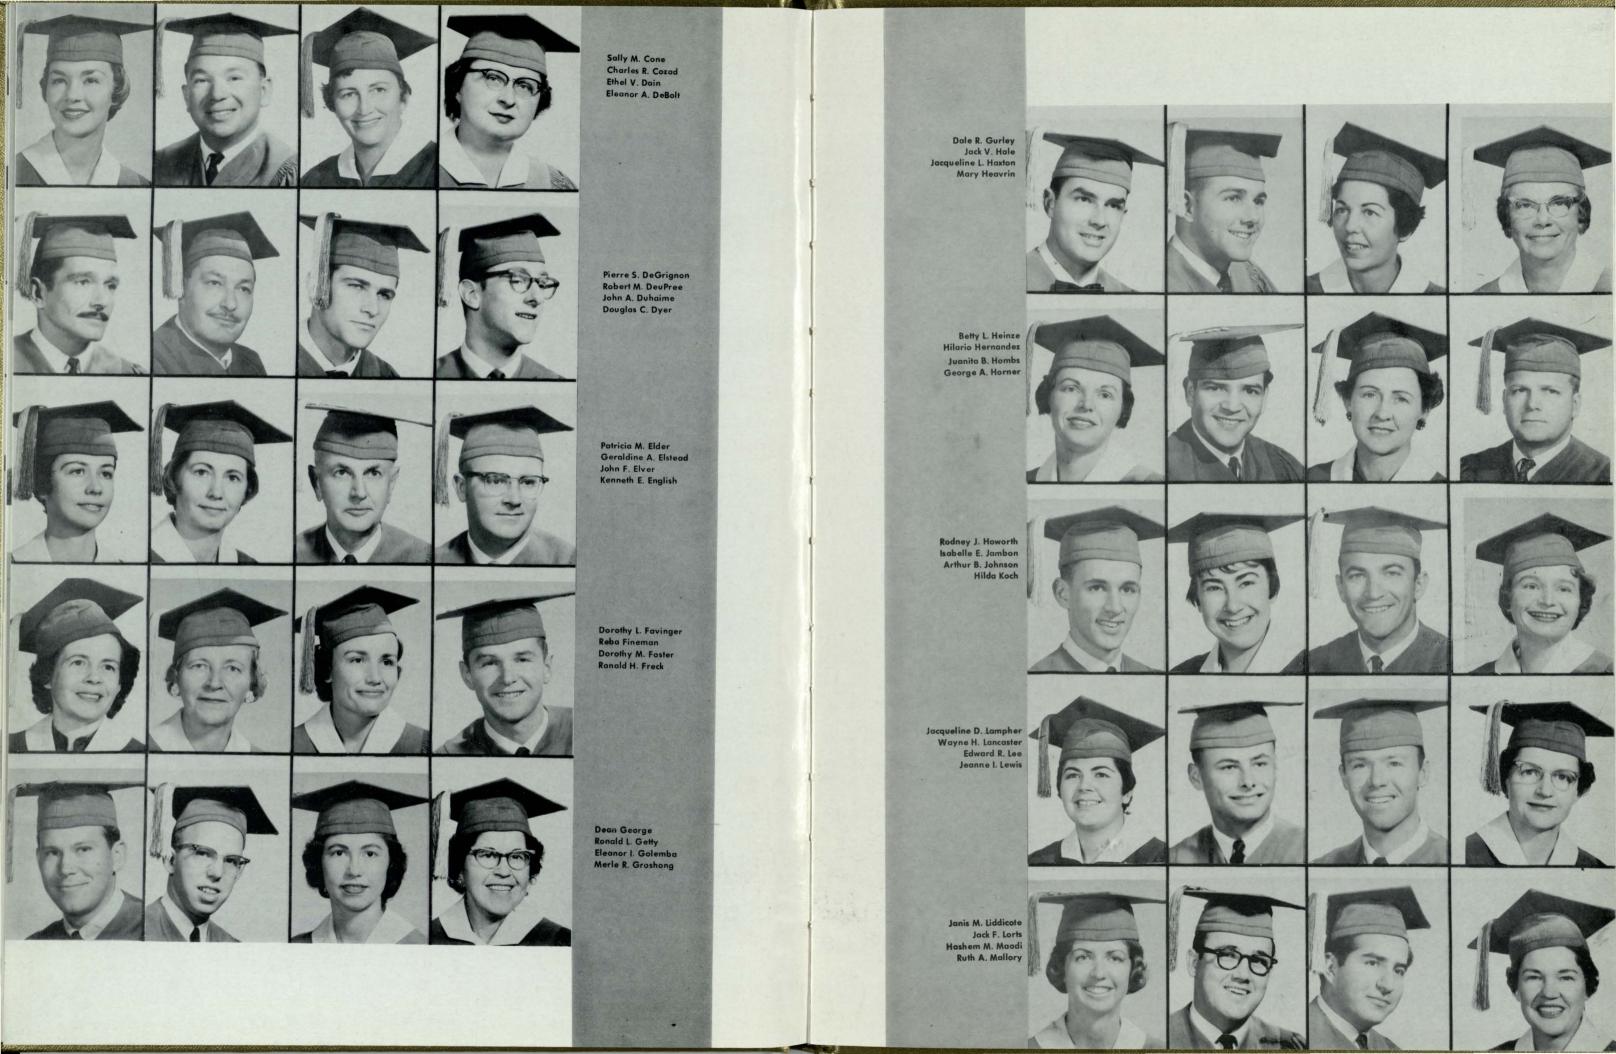

George Rentfro was elected president of the class, J.W Fagar vice-president and John Duhaine was treasurer. Arlyce Janssen served as secretary and Rich DeYoung was elected vice-president during the second semester.

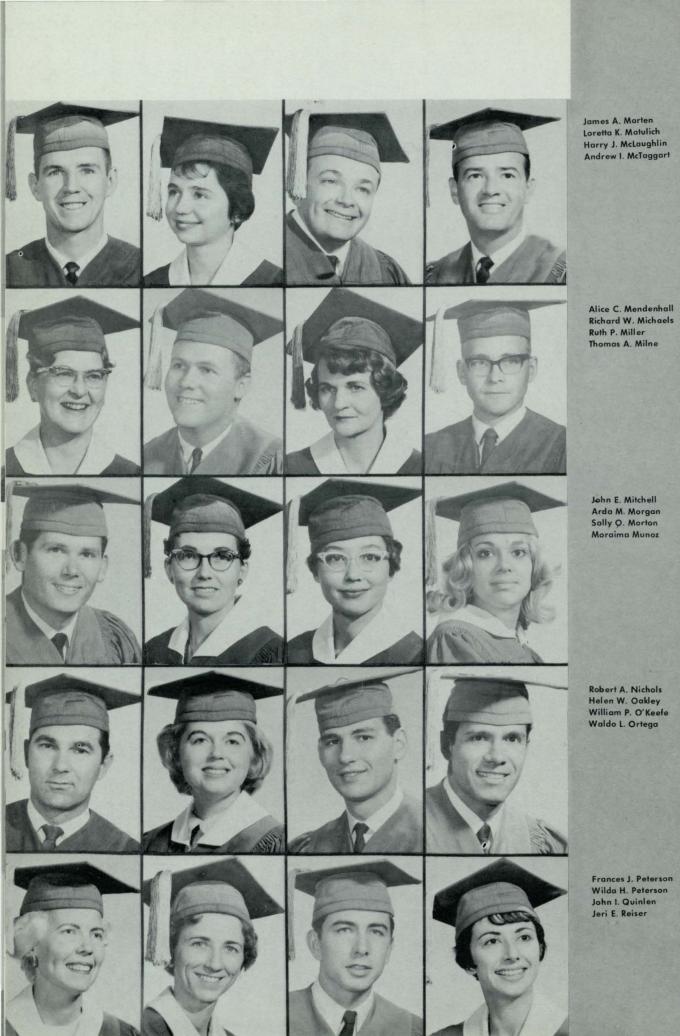

The social calendar began with a successful hot cider sale early in November and closed under the direction of Pierre De-Grignon with the highlight of the year, the Senior Class Banquet, held at the Yorba Linda Country Club.

One of the Junior Class' biggest activities of the year is the sponsorship of the "Day of the Titan" event which was held May 11. Open to all students and their families, the event includes a round of games and races highlighted by the climaxing activity, the push cart relays.

An afternoon pot-luck dinner ended the daylight festivities while a dance in the evening concluded the successful affair. According to Junior Class President Larry Cook, the "Day of the Titan" has been established as an annual event to be sponsored by the Junior Class.

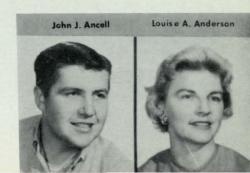

The Junior officers for the year, in addition to Cook, were Dennis Silver, vice-president; Barbara Bower, secretary; and Jerry Knowles, treasurer.

The class also co-sponsored a Halloween Day dance with the Senior Class.
